Description:

International Left-Handers Day is a worldwide day observed perennial on August 13 to dedicate the identity and variations of the left-handers. The day was first discovered in 1976 by Dean R. Campbell, founder of the Lefthanders International.

International Left Handers Day was established to celebrate sinistrality and increase the attention of the benefits and drawbacks of being left-handed in an especially right-handed world. It commemorates left-handed people's identity and variations, a subset of society including seven to ten percent of the world's population. The day also circulates awareness on problems encountered by left-handers e.g. the significance of the special needs for left-handed children, and the probability for left-handers to develop schizophrenia. There are almost 708 million left-handed people in the world. Men are more probable to be left-handed than women.
